Fire Prevention Week, 2004

By the President of the United States of America
A Proclamation

Fire Prevention Week is an opportunity for all Americans to learn more about how to avoid fires, as well as how to best respond in case of such an emergency. By making fire safety a priority, we can help limit the devastating effects of fires and enhance the safety of our citizens.

A large majority of fire deaths in the United States occur in the home. This year's theme, "It's Fire Prevention Week: Test Your Smoke Alarms," reflects the importance of installing and maintaining working smoke alarms on every floor of the home. As vital early warning systems, smoke alarms reduce the chances of a fire becoming fatal by approximately 50 percent. Americans can also take steps to reduce the chance of a fire ever starting. These include using electrical devices safely, avoiding overloading circuits, and carefully operating stoves, fireplaces, and space heaters. We should also supervise our children and educate them about the dangers of lighters and matches, exercise care in the storing of firewood and other flammable materials, and obey local burning laws. More information about these and other measures is available from the National Fire Protection Association and the Department of Homeland Security's United States Fire Administration.

Firefighters are among our greatest heroes, and they risk their lives each day to protect our citizens and our homeland. All Americans owe them a debt of gratitude for their courage and dedication. By working to prevent disasters and by being prepared, we support firefighters as they serve communities across our Nation.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE W. BUSH, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim October 3 through October 9, 2004, as Fire Prevention Week. I call upon the people of the United States to observe this week with appropriate activities and to undertake efforts to prevent fires and their tragic consequences.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this fourth day of October, in the year of our Lord two thousand four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and twenty-ninth.

President's Letter

The KFA Conference is over for this year and I believe everyone had a great time in Northern Kentucky. Thanks to NKFA, Chief Bill Martin and Staff and Hebron Fire Protection District for hosting this year's conference.

We are starting a new year and I am looking forward to visiting all the fire schools that I am able to get to. Please make sure that your fire schools are listed on the KYFireWire and KCTCS websites (www.kyfirewire.com and <http://kctcs.edu/kyfirecommission/index.htm>).

Our memorial service in Frankfort was well attended. I wish more fire departments could attend this service honoring firefighters who have died in the line of duty. Ronnie Day and his staff left the next day for Washington to attend the National Firefighters Memorial service with several family members of firefighters.

The Executive Board is preparing to hire our lobbyist to work in Frankfort. It is an excellent expense to have people looking out for us and working to get more for the fire service. This is a reminder to please pay your dues to allow us to continue to fight for KY Fire Departments at the state capital.

Please contact your regional directors or regional vice presidents if you need information about KFA events. Contact names and numbers may be found on the website at www.kyfa.org. I have an "open door" policy so please contact me at any time.

The KFA has a great executive board that is willing to help our state departments anyway they can. If you have a fire school or special event then please let me know. I will do my best to try and attend.

Treasurer's Notes

Greetings from the North. Hope everyone had a good time at the conference earlier this month. Northern Kentucky always tries to entertain the brothers and sisters from other parts of the state in a gala form.

There have been 40 departments which have paid their 2004-2005 dues, thank you. There are also, eight people who have joined as personal members. I will be working with Charlie Shaw to increase the number of sustaining members this year. We had 46 total last year. Thanks to Charlie for getting these vendors to support our organization.

The E-Board along with Chairman Paul Billings, Scholarship Committee, are working very hard trying to sell the original prints. There maybe a buyer by the end of the year. Paul and his committee have made contact with an organization which seems to be interested in purchasing the prints. Anyone wanting to purchase a set of prints contact Paul Billings 223 Fourth St. Fulton, Ky. 42041. I am sure he will mail you a set for $100.00 plus postage.

Remember dues are due the 1st of October. I will be mailing out dues notices. You can also pay your dues, by going to the web page and printing off a membership form. Melanie Hilliard, our Web Page manager will be updating the form with the new year dates soon. This could save the organization some money in postage and copies if departments would do this. Remember your regional assoc number is one of the 16 regional associations your department belongs to. The fire dept. State ID number is the number the Fire Commission issued.

Should any department or anyone have any questions about the State Association or dues payments, do not hesitate to pick up the phone and call. If I am not home, leave me a message and I will do my best to return your call in 48 hours or less. The only way your E-Board can know of your problems is for you to call us. If you have any news at all and want to submit an article to the Smoke Signals II, I feel certain it will be printed. Let everyone in the state know what is going on in your area. This is our only link of communications between conferences.

I was sorry to hear that we have had a line of duty death, down in the Paducah area. This is never a good thing when I open my e-mail from the Secretary and read the notice. We must find a way to educate our people to be safe.

Until the next E-Board meeting or I hear from someone, stay safe and may god be with you, like firemen Joe says, in everyone's own way.

Your Treasurer
Terry Keller

Active Duty Firefighters

To all fire departments in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The E-Board from a memo from Michael Hulsey, Dixie Firefighters, supported a request that the Smoke Signals II, be sent to all active duty military firefighters that are serving our country away from home. If your department has any members on active military duty please E-mail the Secretary Dave Jansing so that we may provide a copy of the Smoke Signals II to these people.

Would it not be for these men/ woman serving our country, you and I would not be allowed the freedom we enjoy. Please help us reconize these members.

"Firemen are going to get killed. When they join the department they face that fact. When a man becomes a fireman his greatest act of bravery has been accomplished. What he does after that is all in the line of work. They were not thinking of getting killed when they went where death lurked. They went there to put the fire out, and got killed. Firefighters do not regard themselves as heroes because they do what the business requires."

— Chief Edward F. Croker, FDNY, speaking upon the death of a deputy chief and four firefighters in February of 1908

Fireman Joe Says: KFA Public Education Committee

With the arrival of October, The Fire Department Bellevue-Dayton and fire departments throughout the country have geared up with Fire Prevention Month Activities. Fireman Joe has been visiting the schools and other community groups to bring the word about this year's Fire Prevention Month Theme, "TEST YOUR SMOKE ALARMS". There are still a large number of home fires. In 2003 there were 388,500 home fires reported, resulting in 3,145 deaths, 13,650 injuries and $5.9 billion in direct property damage. That translates to about one civilian home fire death every three hours.

Although children only make up about seven percent of the nation's population, they accounted for 14 percent of the home fire deaths last year. People aged 65 and older face a risk of dying in a fire that is twice the average, while people who are 85 and older face a risk of dying that is four and a half times the average. We are doing fire and life safety programs for our children, thanks to NFPA's Risk Watch Program which is actively being taught in our Elementary and Middle Schools. I am very concerned about our Senior's, last year I had the wonderful opportunity to have lunch and speak with a great group of folks from a local church. I would welcome the opportunity to speak to all our local groups, particularly our senior's.

Statistics have found that January is the peak month for home fire deaths, with December ranking second and March ranking third. While smoking leads the causes of home fire deaths, in the winter months of December, January and February, smoking ties with heating equipment for the leading cause of home fire deaths. Cooking related fires was the leading cause of home fires in general, and year-round it generates the most injuries.

The NFPA did a home fire survey in 1999 which revealed some startling truths. Only a small number of families, about 35 percent, have actually developed and practiced a home fire escape plan to ensure that they could escape quickly and safely in the event of fire in their homes. It was also discovered that if a smoke alarm went off in the middle of the night, only 39 percent said they would leave the house immediately. An astounding 56 percent replied to the survey that they would investigate to find the source of the alarm.

Fireman Joe reminds us a lot of fire and life safety is common sense. But we emphasize the precautions because, if the behavior is ingrained in our heads, we will more likely do the safe thing. A familiar house looks completely different bathed in smoke, threatened with fire, so it is easy to become disoriented and panic. Do what you can to keep your family safe! Prepare your Escape Plan Today! Install and Maintain WORKING SMOKE ALARMS!

Application Procedures Announced for the 2005 Harvard Fire Executive Fellowship Program

Emmitsburg, MD-Application procedures have been announced for the 2005 Harvard Fire Executive Fellowship Program. The program is once again sponsored through a partnership between the International Association of Fire Chiefs (IAFC), the International Fire Service Training Association (IFSTA), the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and the Department of Homeland Security - Federal Emergency Management Agency -United States Fire Administration (USFA). Each organization will fund the tuition costs of two individuals for a total of eight fellowships.

USFA Administrator R. David Paulison in announcing the 2005 Program said "the need for cooperation between senior executives in fire and emergency services organizations and their state and local level counterparts has never been greater if we are to successfully respond to the many challenges we face. As a former graduate and recipient of the Harvard Fellowship Program in 1995, I know this experience provides the opportunity for senior fire executives to participate in a superior quality professional development program." Paulison further stated, "those individuals selected have an opportunity to inform and educate other state and local government participants of the many contemporary emergency services issues and challenges confronting society, including fire service roles in preparing for, responding to, and mitigating terrorism situations."

Eight senior fire executives will be awarded fellowships to attend Harvard's annual "Program for Senior Executives in State and Local Government." The 3-week program is conducted on the Harvard campus in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Selected Fellows will be assigned to attend one of the two session dates: June 12 -

July 1, 2005, July 10-29, 2005.

Applicants must be available to attend either session.

Applicants are responsible for travel costs to the final interview process, and if selected also to Cambridge. Housing will be provided at the National Emergency Training Center for the interview process. Fellows are expected to continue their professional contributions to fire and emergency services in light of their State & Local Program experience.

The following criteria and guidelines have been established for the 2005 program:

Application is open to senior fire executives who have demonstrated significant career accomplishments and have the potential to impact and initiate change. Attainment of a senior position is less important than demonstrated experience in facilitating significant change within a public sector setting.

Preference may be given to applicants who are graduates of the National Fire Academy's Executive Fire Officer Program, although program completion is not a prerequisite. Preference may also be given to applicants who have completed graduate-level degree programs or course work.

Individuals whose organizations have been represented in the Harvard Fellowship Program during 2002, 2003, or 2004 will not be considered. The program is available to international participants.

A FEMA General Admission Application (Form 75-5) is required and must be post-marked no later than January 31, 2005. An organizational chart of the applicant's sponsoring organization (with applicant's position highlighted) is required. All applicants must include a resume with their submission. All packages should be forwarded to the following address: Harvard Fellowship Program, U.S. Fire Administration, c/o Ms. Kathleen Carter, 16825 South Seton Ave, Emmitsburg, Maryland, 21727. For questions contact Ms. Carter @ (301) 447-1349 or kathleen.carter@dhs.gov. Semi-finalists will be forwarded complete program information and materials for a secondary application process that is essay based.

For more information please refer to the United States Fire Administration/National Fire Academy Web site http://www.usfa.fema.gov/fire-service/nfa/higher-degree/degree_programs/he3b.shtml or the Harvard University/John F. On March 1, 2003, FEMA became part of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. FEMA's continuing mission within the new department is to lead the effort to prepare the nation for all hazards and effectively manage federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident. FEMA also initiates proactive mitigation activities, trains first responders, and manages the National Flood Insurance Program and the U.S. Fire Administration.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY TIPS

Boo! Getting ready for the spookiest day of the year? Halloween is quickly sneaking up. Check out these simple tips and you'll be on your way to safe trick-or-treating...if you dare!

- 🦇 Have grown-ups make sure your costume is fire-safe (there should be a flame-resistant or flame-retardant label on store bought costumes, wigs and props (such as magic wands, hats, and tails...)).
- 🦇 Costumes shouldn't have baggy sleeves or billowing capes, they could easily catch on fire if you brush against a candle or jack-o-lantern. Be on the look out and stay away from open flames (like candles and jack-o-lanterns).

- 🦇 If your clothes catch fire, make sure to stop, drop, and roll over and over to put the fire out. It's always a good idea to practice!
- 🦇 Make your costume nice and bright so drivers can see you -- use retro reflective tape (when light hits the tape it bounces back), use a glow stick or carry a flashlight.
- 🦇 Follow the rules of the road. When crossing the street, stop at the curb or edge of the road. Look left, then right, then left again for moving cars before crossing. Kids 10 years old and younger should cross the street with a grown-up.

- 🦇 Make sure a grown-up goes with you when trick-or-treating.
- 🦇 Lastly, have grown-ups check your candy before you eat it (and don't forget to brush your teeth afterwards)!

Using Heaters in the Colder Weather

With the recent temperature drop, residents have begun using portable heating devices to help keep their homes warm. While many are anxious to get their units up and running quickly, safe measures and precautions should always be taken to ensure a safe, warm home through the upcoming winter. Heating equipment is the leading cause of home fires during the months of December, January and February, and trails only cooking equipment in home fires year-round.

Safety Tips

- Space heaters need space. Portable space heaters need a three-foot (one meter) clearance from anything that can burn and should always be turned off when leaving the room or going to sleep.

- When buying a new unit, make sure it carries the mark of an independent testing lab. Be sure that a qualified technician installs the unit or checks that the unit has been installed properly.
- Wood and coal stoves, fireplaces, chimneys, chimney connectors, and all other solid-fueled heating equipment need to be inspected annually by a professional and cleaned as often as the inspections indicate.
- Portable kerosene heaters must be fueled only in a well-ventilated area, free of flame and other heat sources, and only when the device has cooled completely. Use only the type of kerosene specified by the manufacturer for that device, and never use gasoline instead of kerosene. Also, be sure that portable kerosene heaters are legal for home use in your state.

- When turning a heating device on or off, be careful to follow the manufacturer's instructions. When buying heaters, look for devices with automatic shutoff features.
- Be sure any gas-fueled heating device is installed with proper attention to ventilation, and never put unvented gas space heaters in bedrooms or bathrooms. Also, LP (liquefied petroleum) gas heaters with self-contained fuel supplies are prohibited for home use by NFPA codes.

United States Fire Administration Releases Incident Command System Self-Study 2nd Edition

EMMITSBURG, MD - Michael D. Brown, Under Secretary of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security for Emergency Preparedness and Response, announced today the release of the Web - based Incident Command System (ICS) Self-Study, 2nd Edition, developed by the United States Fire Administration. This new program provides all First Responders with the basic understanding of NIMS compliant ICS and also provides the user with an overview and basic explanation of Incident Command Systems, including organizational structure, positions and functions, responsibilities and considerations.

"Since the tragic events of September 11, 2001, our Nation is resolved to better prepare to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States and reduce America's vulnerability to terrorism, major disasters, and other emergencies," said Brown.

"These complex and emerging 21st century threats and hazards demand a unified and coordinated national approach to domestic incident management."

This program is being offered to all fire service officers and other first responders and emergency managers, who use, implement, and function within an incident command system and structure. This self-paced program addresses some of the issues described in NFPA Standard 1561. No certificate will be issued for this program. The program has been offered on CD ROM for the past 7 years. It has now been updated and converted to a new Web - based version placed on the NETC Virtual Campus. To participate in this Web -based course, go to: <http://www.training.fema.gov> and click on the Online Training NETC Virtual Campus.

The CD-ROM version is also still available for order. To order the CD, contact USFA Publications at 1-800-561-3356 or visit <http://www.usfa.fema.gov/applications/publications/display.cfm?it=9-1982> to order online. Limit of one (1) per fire department.

MEMORIAL ADDRESS

R. David Paulison, United States Fire Administrator

Fallen Firefighters Memorial Ceremonies

Emmitsburg, MD

October 3, 2004

Good morning and thank you for inviting me to participate in this, the 2004 National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Services. I am truly honored, indeed, humbled, to stand before you, and with you, here today.

Before making my comments I would like to take a moment to thank Under Secretary Michael Brown for joining us here today. Under Secretary Brown has been and remains a staunch ally of the fire service community, and all of us appreciate your efforts on our behalf. Thank you Mike, and please know our thoughts and best wishes go with you as you continue to successfully lead this nation's response and recovery efforts through a challenging disaster season. Not only in Florida – although one must go back to before the Civil War to find record of a single state being struck 4 times in one year by major hurricanes -- but in so many other areas affected this year.

I would also like to acknowledge and thank Hal Bruno and the Fallen Firefighters Foundation Board of Directors, for your efforts this year. In particular, I would like to thank you for your continuing efforts to make this such a special place for all firefighters, and in particular the families of the over 2700 fallen heroes named here. When this memorial was authorized and established in 1981 by President Reagan, no one anticipated what a profound and transforming impact it would eventually have on the fire service community. Your continuing efforts to improve the memorial and to more prominently display the names of this nation's fallen firefighters, are a testament to your unwavering commitment and dedication to always remember those firefighters who lost their lives in service to their communities. Thank you Hal, the foundation Board members, Ron Siarnicki, and your dedicated staff. The firefighters whose names we place on this wall would be proud of your efforts to ensure the families they have left behind will never be forgotten. Thank you.

I would also like to take a moment to thank the many volunteers that selflessly give their time and efforts to ensure the fire service has this special opportunity to join with the families of the fallen each year. Your countless hours of support allow this nation to come together to recognize these fallen firefighters, lost to us in 2003. It will be a perfect year when we don't need to meet here at all, but it will take dedication and hard work to make that happen in my lifetime.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge the members of the USFA staff, who have also volunteered so many hours preparing for and hosting this gathering. Deputy U.S. Fire Administrator Charlie Dickinson has been in charge of the planning and operations for the past year, and he has been supported by many others from my staff whom have also given their time and expertise to this memorial service. My thanks to my dear friend Charlie Dickinson and the USFA staff for your contributions. They have not gone unnoticed.

I made mention earlier to having to go back to before the Civil war to find a time when a state has been struck by 4 major hurricanes in one year. The year was actually 1851. None of us were around then, but I do know one thing for sure: I know the firefighters of 1851 were, just like you, on the front lines, serving, and making sacrifices for their fellow Americans. Then, as now, firefighters can always be found on the front lines.

Since the very founding of our great nation in 1776, firefighters have been a critical part of every community and to the residents that called their community... home. It is a well-known fact that most of our founding fathers and signers of the Constitution of the United States were firefighters. Brave individuals willing to stand between the dangers of fire, and the people those fires threatened.

Since earliest colonial times, we have seen the fire service go from leather buckets, to hand drawn wagons. From hand drawn wagons to horse drawn steam engines. From these primitive fire protection vehicles to the very state of the art vehicles of you see parked around these grounds today.

We have gone from no breathing apparatus to support a firefighter, to light weight composite materials and breathing apparatus now capable of sustaining firefighters for enough time to accomplish their assigned tasks, and enabling them to work in what were once impossible fire conditions. We have gone from summoning firefighters by lanterns on roof tops or bells ringing through the streets, to advanced communications systems capable of handling and providing notifications and alerts for large and complex fires response operations.

Those earliest firefighters wore what they had on their backs to staff these bucket brigades. What an improvement it must have been when firefighters had access to rubber coats and leather helmets. Today, firefighters are dressed very similar to the astronauts that explore our

But one thing still remains unchanged from the 1700's to today. Regardless of the equipment, clothing, nozzles, vehicles...regardless of all of these advances...it still takes men and women acting quickly, acting bravely and entering buildings to handle the emergencies.... others are fleeing from. Men and women willing to place themselves between the threat of fire, and those threatened by fire. No fire ever went out, or emergency ever went away, simply because a truck showed up with state of the art equipment. It takes people, firefighters, dedicated to the safety and well being of their community.

Today, there are (1.3 million) one point three million firefighters carrying pagers, working in firehouses, simply waiting and preparing for the next alarm... the next call for help by a resident of their community. 1.3 million firefighters protecting this nation.

Like our brave and heroic soldiers currently standing watch this moment in far away lands to protect his nation, so it is true across the 33,000 fire departments of this nation. To accomplish these missions and responses we so richly speak of, we use the terms: divisions, companies, and battalions. We talk of special ops teams and talk of task forces. All of these terms representing a group of talented people; individuals coming together to make this nation safer for other all Americans.

There is however one term we rarely use, yet it strikes at the very core of our individual existence in the fire service...regardless of where you live and fight fires in the United States. The term is "family." As every new firefighter discovers early in the service, the firefighters of this nation are a family.

Every firefighter knows, the moment they step into a firehouse, they belong to a family. Firefighters you see, are extremely fortunate. We have our primary families, but will over time find great comfort and companionship in our second families. Our fellow firefighters.

Webster's Dictionary defines family as a group of people living under one roof, with a common history and heritage. Since 1776, we have known the history of firefighting, and our heritage is here again before us as we recognize these 110 firefighters and their sacrifice.

Today, we come together not as a company, division or battalion. Today we assemble here, as a family. This is family who experienced together the many successes in 2003, but unfortunately the tragic loss of 110 of our fellow firefighters.

The world will always remember the ultimate price paid by the 343 firefighters of New York, just three short years ago. They are here too, on their own plaque, and will always be joined together by name forever. It has not gone unnoticed however, that as many firefighters have been lost since September 11th, as were lost on that single day.

As we have annually and solemnly done since 1981, we once again assemble on these hallowed grounds, as a family. Many of the firefighters here today and watching via satellite, may have personally known one of the firefighters we are honoring today. We, as a family, know that we have lost more than good people, we have lost true heroes.

We are all keenly aware of each family's loss, and recognize that none of us feel that loss as strongly or as painfully as each family. But when a fellow firefighter falls in the line of duty, we all feel that loss; within our departments, our communities, the fire service, and as a Nation. . . . When a firefighter loses his or her life in the line of duty, we, the members of the fire service, not only lose someone who has proven heroic, we lose someone who would have continued to make a difference.

There are many children here today. They have heard the cry of the pipes and beat of drums. They have seen our symbol of freedom and unity, draped and folded over a firefighter's final resting place. The difference, however, is that these fallen heroes may have been their mom or dad. And, while we gather here for a couple of days each year to fondly remember and reflect, these hero's children will experience this poignant loss for the rest of their lives.

The family left the firehouse together, only, not everyone came back. As a result, the entire lifetime of a child, a spouse, a loved one.... has been changed forever.

In the future, a number of the children here today will seek to follow in their mom or dad's footsteps and join the family of firefighters. When they do, and when they go out that firehouse door on a call with their family of firefighters, I sincerely hope that we will have reached a level of safety and capability such that everyone will come home after the alarm. Every One Goes Home! That is our enduring goal.

The 110 firefighters that we solemnly recognize and remember this weekend, will now join the over 2700 heroes who are remembered already, here, and in perpetuity, at this Memorial.

To the firefighters and their families; we recommit our allegiance. For it is a rare and noble cause that we recognize: the hero's unswerving devotion to their fellow firefighters, and unwavering commitment to protecting, at any cost, people and residents they do not even know. This allegiance to the fire service family....this loyalty.... this devotion inspires all of us to contribute to the greater good of this great nation. Firefighters called to become heroes, rescuers, servants of their fellow citizens. We are truly a noble family!

May God shed his grace and peace on these families and the firefighters of this nation, and may God Bless America. Thank you.
